POLO FOR THE SPECTATOR

Polo is very straightforward as a spectator sport. There are six periods (Chukkas) of seven minutes. There are four players in each team. The No. 1 and 2 are basically forwards. The No. 3 and 4 are equivalent to five-eighth and back in Rugby. The players should mark their opposite number; that is the No. 4 should mark the No. 1, preventing him from scoring by hooking and riding off.

There is no "offside" rule. The rules are common sense based on a player having the "right of way" in order to eliminate danger. Therefore, no player shall play with his left hand. Play starts from a line up in the center by one of the two umpires throwing the ball.

The team that scores the most goals wins. Behinds don't count. The umpires will award penalties depending upon the severity of the infringement. When a penalty I is given a goal is signaled and a throw in occurs 10 yards out from the penalized team's goal mouth.

The essence of the game is team work.

- Penalty II — 30 yards free hit
- Penalty III — 40 yards free hit
- Penalty IV — 60 yards free hit
- Penalty V(a) — free hit on the spot
- Penalty V(b) — free hit from the middle of the ground

RULES OF THE GAME

1

The white player has the line, and at fair speed the blue player would be crossing the line without sufficient safety margin, resulting in a penalty against black.

2

Even at a far lesser angle the black player would still be crossing the line if he continues in that direction, and committing a dangerous foul.

3

When travelling in the same direction the blue player may draw level with and then force him across the line and take possession of the ball without committing a dangerous foul.

4

The blue player may move in parallel with the line and play a shot providing he can do so without interfering with the white's mount or causing him to check back. If blue would cross the line to the dotted position it would be a foul.

5

Two players riding for a ball from opposite directions in the open must both give way to the left and take the ball on their right or offside.

6

When two players are approaching a ball in the open from different directions, the player (blue), with the line of the ball on his offside, right hand side, has right of way.

We would like to thank all participating teams and visitors for your attendance.

We hope you have enjoyed your time at Garangula.
